Still on a Christmas shopping spree and beginning to run short of gift ideas, especially for the dearly loved ones on top of your list? Not to worry! As long as you have a heavy wallet, you're always open to wider choices.

This holiday season Chanin Group offers distinctive and unique furniture and home accessories that will make gift-giving sophisticated, luxurious and special.

The following is a sampling of key items from the Chanin Group's merchandise range that are especially unique and remarkable for the 2008 holiday shopping season — whether a shopper is buying gifts for Christmas, the New Year or other holidays.

These items are designed by world-renowned designers and brands which are available in stores under the Chanin Group, including Herman Miller by CHM Systems, Barbara Barry and Martha Stewart Furniture.

Herman Miller by CHM Systems offers stylish yet functional items such as the Eames molded plastic chair with rocker base. Today, the chairs are fully authentic and true to the originals, with innovative updated materials to meet environmental requirements.

Another special piece offered by Herman Miller is the Leaf personal light, which uses innovative LED technology to bring the human touch to lighting. Designed by Yves Behar of fuse project in San Francisco, the Leaf light allows the user to manage lighting intensity, colour and on/off capabilities by simply touching the intuitive controls.

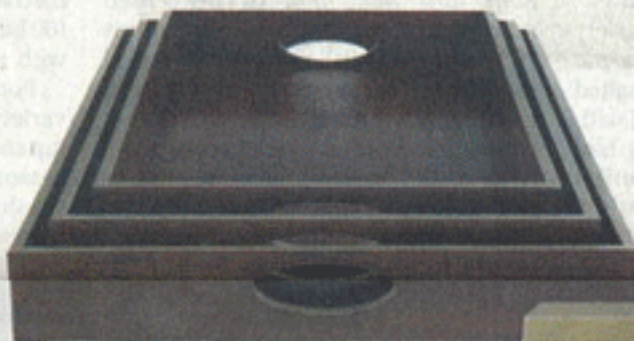

Barbara Barry's home accessories make elegant gifts which retain the true concept of Barry's renowned grace and comfort. These perfect gift items include the lacquer box-stack, the classic oval or rectangular serving tray, the cozy knit throw, the little bauble pillow and the crystal sphere with stand.

Herman Miller's Leaf Personal Light is sleek, energy-efficient and easily-adjustable.
